The Latest at Cummings

Woburn welcomes another Cambridge transplant: The Commonwealth is relocating another courthouse from Cambridge to Woburn: Middlesex County Probate and Family Court South will move from its longtime home on Cambridge Street to 10 Commerce Way, Woburn. Doors will open at the custom-built 50,000-square-foot facility November 9. This is the third court Woburn will house within its city limits. Read more in Woburn Advocate.

Democratizing philanthropy: Bill Cummings was recently a featured (virtual) speaker at Duke University. Check out the recording to hear about Cummings Foundation's unconventional approach to philanthropy, which involves empowering more than 100 volunteers to determine the majority of recipients of a total of $25 million each year. Over nearly a decade, Bill and his wife, Joyce, have developed a process that draws on the rich diversity and vast expertise of the greater Boston business and nonprofit communities. Viewers will learn about the evolution of this unique volunteer model and the thought process behind relinquishing such a substantial amount of control over their charitable giving.

Cummings Buildings Power Charities

Thanks to a newly rehabbed courtyard, the residents at Cummings Foundation's New Horizons at Choate senior living community are enjoying the fall foliage in style. Interior renovations on the brand new Courtyard Suites residence wing are also progressing, and 17 oversized studio and two-room apartments will soon be ready for occupancy.
