Friendly Reminder

Halls Are Not For Calls: All clients are encouraged to remind employees and visitors to refrain from conducting cell phone calls in common area hallways, as doing so may disturb surrounding businesses. Out of respect and courtesy for neighbors, calls should be made or taken only within one's own office space. If taking a call in the hallway cannot be avoided, please silence ringtones and moderate the volume of the conversation.

Cummings Center Snippet

Most clients know that the Cummings Center campus is made up of four garages and seven buildings. Many may not be aware, however, of the story behind its "Parziale Bridges."

More than a decade ago, Field Division Manager Tim Parziale (pictured with his son) suggested creating covered pedestrian bridges to connect buildings to parking garages as a convenience for clients and visitors during inclement weather. Between 2006 and 2009 the idea became a reality, and the three bridges were named in his honor.
