Introducing...

Matthew Maninos: Matt heads up the grounds crew at TradeCenter 128, making sure the campus is attractive and well maintained year round. He takes care of plantings and landscaping, and when cold weather arrives, serves on Cummings Properties' Snow Team. His crew expands each summer with the addition of student workers, whom he looks forward to working with and mentoring each year. Matt also frequently lends a hand indoors, assisting his TradeCenter 128 teammates with buildouts, demos, and painting.

Matt is proud to be raising his two sons, with his wife, Caroline, in the Wilmington neighborhood where he grew up. A true New Englander, he follows all the local sports teams and embraces winter. Years ago, Matt built a dinosaur snow statue on his front lawn that landed him and his son on the pages of Wilmington Town Crier. When the Patriots took home their fifth Lombardi Trophy this year, Matt took to the front lawn once again and crafted a larger-than-life snow tribute to the team.

Matt and his family enjoy the outdoors, and participate in an annual 60-person 8-mile trip on the Pemigewasset River in New Hampshire.
